These salmon habitat projects are prime examples of the types of habitat restoration work that will produce significant measurable results for salmon recovery in the first three years of implementing the plan, as well as contribute to overall Puget Sound ecosystem health.